Director Biography

Stephen A. Tindle, College of Arts & Sciences, 1990

Career

Stephen is a real estate developer with a passion for building functionally designed homes in infill locations near employment centers, shopping, entertainment, and best in class schools. Stephen is a member of the executive team with the California home-building company, Thomas James Homes. Stephen is responsible for leading and growing the Northern California Bay Area Division.

University of Redlands

While at the University of Redlands, Stephen was a member of the varsity golf team, as well as the varsity cycling team. In addition to his sports interest, Stephen is a member of the Kappa Sigma Sigma fraternity. One of the more impactful experiences for Stephen while at the University of Redlands was his time spent in Salzburg, Austria. He credits his Salzburg experience as the catalyst for his love of travel and his never-ending desire to learn about other people and interesting cultures.

Community and Civic

Stephen is the past President of the U.C. Berkeley Haas School of Business Alumni Board. In addition to his Berkeley involvement, Stephen is an Alumni Liaison for the School of Business at Columbia University in New York City. Stephen is a member of the Habitat for Humanity builder program in Northern California, where his former firm delivered 27 affordable housing units in the City of San Francisco. Stephen is also very involved with the Piedmont Boy Scout Council, the Piedmont Community Church, as well volunteering his time to the Piedmont Unified School District.

Education

Stephen earned his Bachelor of Science in Business Administration from the University of Redlands in 1990. Additionally, Stephen has a master's degree from the Haas School of Business at U.C. Berkeley, as well as a master's degree from the Columbia Business School at Columbia University in New York City.

Personal

Stephen and his wife, Mia reside in Piedmont, CA. Mia and Stephen are the proud parents of Kailey and Pierce. Pierce is busy being a member of the Piedmont swim team, playing violin and learning about nature, while Kailey recently completed her third year of medical school at Thomas Jefferson University in Philadelphia.
