

Info Sheet: Salzburg Faculty Fellows Program

A key feature of the Salzburg Semester has been CAS faculty journeying to Salzburg and offering courses that our undergrads can take during their semester abroad. Those interested in being a Salzburg Faculty Fellow for a semester will have their teaching in Salzburg counted in-load.

Below are some details regarding the Salzburg Faculty Fellows Program:

- Salzburg Semester Teaching: Faculty Fellows will teach two blocks of the Salzburg Semester in Fall or Spring. Teaching will commence 4-5 weeks after the start of the University of Redlands semester. It will cover 8 weeks, including a block (4 weeks) prior to the Salzburg Fall or Spring Break and another block (4 weeks) after the break. Faculty Fellows should propose teaching that ideally takes advantage of the Austrian, European, international, or global nature of the Salzburg Program and/or its nature as an interdisciplinary program in the arts and humanities.
- Faculty Fellow Compensation and Covered Expenses:
 - Faculty Fellows will receive their regular University of Redlands pay while they are teaching in Salzburg.
 - Travel directly to and from Salzburg, Austria, will be covered for the Faculty Fellow.
 - An apartment while living up to 11 weeks in Salzburg will be provided by the program. The apartment will be a studio suitable for the fellow and a partner. The Salzburg Director can assist with finding housing for families but securing such housing beyond the cost of the studio apartment will be the Fellow's responsibility.
 - Weekend meal stipends will be provided for up to 7 weeks.
- Faculty Fellow Teaching Obligation: During the semester in which a Faculty Fellow offers a Salzburg course, they will be considered to have a 2-course semester. This means that the faculty fellow will need to offer 3 courses in their non-Salzburg semester and 1 course during the May term. For example, if teaching in the Spring Salzburg Semester, the faculty member's load would be 3-2-1 (fall-spring-May term) for the academic year.
- Adjunct Courses Back at the University of Redlands: I will provide adjunct course funding to the department or program of the Faculty Fellow selected to offer a Salzburg Semester course. The funding will be sufficient to cover two courses at the standard adjunct rate.

It is also expected that the faculty fellow will be willing to share their activities abroad with other faculty and staff through the Salzburg Symposium and/or faculty forum. Former fellows may also be asked to serve on the Salzburg Advisory Board.

Anyone interested in applying to be a faculty fellow is encouraged to consult with the Salzburg Director, Katie Baber, as well as former faculty fellows and Austrian faculty members. A list of faculty fellows and contact information for the Austrian faculty can be found at the Salzburg Semester webpage: <https://www.redlands.edu/study/study-abroad/cas-study-away/salzburg-semester/>

All applications will be evaluated by the Salzburg Advisory Board. In coordination with the Salzburg Director, Katie Baber, and Director of CAS Study Away, Andrea Muilenburg, this faculty group will make its recommendations to Dean Kendrick Brown.
